

CORONA Business Confidence Survey™

CORONA business leaders are slightly less optimistic about the next 12 months of the local economy. The confidence level in September 2016 was down 3% when compared to the previous results from March 2016.

When compared to the previous survey, projections are relatively the same for sales and profits with a majority of leaders still expecting to see an increase in the next year. As for employment, a majority of our leaders still expect local levels to remain the same. The biggest changes this survey came from the outlook on a state and national level, where optimism has dropped the most.
